

Alice Manfred

No Known Copyright

Princeton University Library reasonably believes that the Item is not restricted by copyright or related rights, but a conclusive determination could not be made.

You are free to use this Item in any way that is permitted by the copyright and related rights legislation that applies to your use.

Princeton University Library Disclaimer

Princeton University Library claims no copyright governing this digital resource. It is provided for free, on a non-commercial, open-access basis, for fair-use academic and research purposes only. Anyone who claims copyright over any part of these resources and feels that they should not be presented in this manner is invited to contact Princeton University Library, who will in turn consider such concerns and make every effort to respond appropriately. We request that users reproducing this resource cite it according the guidelines described at <http://rbcs.princeton.edu/policies/forms-citation>.

Citation Information

Morrison, Toni. 1931-

Alice Manfred

1 folder (partial)

Contact Information

Download Information

Date Rendered: 2019-09-05 12:46:24 PM UTC

Available Online at: <http://arks.princeton.edu/ark:/88435/dr26z2952>

Alice Manfred/ July 11, 1989

Alice lived on third avenue and 83rd street when she first came to the city and couldn't wait to get out of that run down neighborhood, full of common colored people, and get north of the Park. It took her five years, but by 1910, she had made it, and gladly left behind all those Negroes remembering how it used to be in Yorktown, before the Germans came.

[tk]

Just when she was settled and had her four rooms the way she always wanted--hand hemmed sheets on the bed, multi-colored lace on the backs of the chairs--the East St. Louis thing happened and she had to take in her neice, or let her live with her broher-in-law's parents who dipped snuff and signed documents when they had to with an X.